OUR SUPPLIERS

Frozen Foods

Peru's main frozen food exports include mango, blueberries, strawberries, and avocado, each sourced from regions with optimal growing conditions. Mangoes come primarily from Piura, where the warm climate supports strong production. Blueberries are cultivated in Ica, known for its dry, sunny weather. Strawberries are grown in Lima and La Libertad, both offering temperate climates ideal for high-quality fruit. Avocados are sourced from La Libertad, Lima, and Lambayeque, regions recognized for their fertile soil and favorable climate.

These high-quality frozen fruits are available for export in a range of volumes, cuts, and packaging options to meet international market requirements.

BLUEBERRIES

We provide the finest selection of high-quality frozen blueberries, exclusively tailored to meet the needs of the international market.

A close-up photograph of several pieces of frozen mango. The mango is cut into irregular, chunky shapes, showing a bright yellow-orange color. The surface of the mango has a fine, frosty texture, indicating it is frozen. The lighting is warm, highlighting the natural color of the fruit and the white frost. The background is a soft, out-of-focus yellow, creating a cohesive and appetizing visual.
