Frozen Fruit

The main frozen fruits exported by Peru include mango, blueberries, strawberries, and raspberries, all grown in specific regions with optimal conditions. Mangoes are mainly sourced from Piura, where the warm climate ensures excellent production. Blueberries are cultivated in the Ica region, known for its dry, sunny climate that favors their growth. Strawberries are grown in Lima and La Libertad, areas with a temperate climate that ensures high-quality fruit. Raspberries are also from Ica, an area renowned for its fertile soil and ideal climate for cultivation.

These high-quality frozen fruits are available for export in various volumes, cuts, and packaging, tailored to meet the needs of international markets.

DEHYDRATES

We offer a premium selection of high-quality Peruvian dehydrated products, exclusively tailored for the international market.

Ginger

We provide top-tier dehydrated ginger, ready to cook and, like all our products, treated with steam sterilization and infrared technology to ensure quality.
